

What's Behind Our Name?

Aggressive. No single word better describes Gemini Electric, Inc. From top management down, the company is driven by a desire to offer quality and speed in everything from its maintenance work, plant service and new construction.

Since its founding in 1990, Gemini has taken a bold and enterprising approach to electrical contracting, with a view toward the long term. No project is taken on that lacks the potential to result in a win/win situation for both Gemini and its customer. "The only way we do a job is the right way," says president Matt Connors.

"The only way we do a job is the right way!"

Matt Connors — President, Gemini Electric, Inc.

Managed growth has led to financial stability, evidenced by a substantial bonding capacity. The company's large fleet of vehicles and equipment is new, modern and includes virtually every specialty tool available to do the best job in the shortest time frame.

Only the most technically proficient and customer-focused staff are hired to work at Gemini. They are able to call upon their lengthy industry experience — 10, 20 and 30 years in most cases — to solve customer problems. Doing things right the first time is not just a slogan, it's a commitment.

Nothing is more important than honoring commitments — such as completing your project on schedule. Gemini knows well its capabilities and chooses its work accordingly. Standing behind its promises means, too, that if it makes a mistake, it accepts full responsibility for setting it right. It is this principle which has earned Gemini the loyalty and respect of its customers.

Capitalizing on the fact that many electrical contractors, after decades in business, have become complacent. Capitalizing on that opportunity, Gemini's president has assembled a team of like-minded vigorous and energetic people. They've seized the initiative and now set the standard — to be the best electrical contractor in northern New England.
